

Adimika Arthur, CEO/Executive Director at HealthTech 4 Medicaid (HT4M) - Adimika Arthur is the executive director at HealthTech 4 Medicaid (HT4M), a national nonprofit dedicated to supporting innovation in Medicaid and further improving the quality, equity and access to care for Medicaid recipients, their families and communities. Arthur is a proven healthcare executive with a strong management track record and over 20 years of experience as a clinical epidemiologist, public health leader and hospital administrator. Arthur is a known global health equity leader and impact designer for purpose driven organizations and stakeholders helping them create meaningful interactions and sustainable business solutions for mobilizing causes they care about and eradicating health inequities. Adimika is affectionately known as “Madam Medicaid” in social media and has a demonstrated commitment to the country’s largest insurance program, Medicaid. Her dedication was sparked back in 2005, when she helped author the 1115 waiver that expanded Medicaid in California and brought over $180M to improve service delivery and care pathways for millions of Californians. Arthur has an MPH from the University of Washington, and a BS from Clark Atlanta University.