

Mary K MacNulty bio

Mary K. is recently retired from Information Technology sales. She has worked for IBM and most recently Hewlett Packard Enterprise (HPE). Over the years she has supported large technology companies and retailers with a global presence . She has managed a hybrid team across hardware, software and services sales around the world. She and her team worked closely with their clients to understand their strategic priorities and provide solution to meet their goals.

As she is transitioning in the next chapter of her life, Mary K. Is looking to become more engaged in the community and leverage the skills from her professional career. Previously, both she and her daughter were part of a mother/daughter non-profit national organization, National Charity League focused where both of them held board/leadership positions.

Born on the east coast, she is a California transplant. She loves travel, reading and most of all time with her family, all of whom reside in the Bay Area.
